Dear State and Local CSFP Directors,

We're excited to share that the National Commodity Supplemental Food Program Association (NCSFPA) is returning to an in-person annual conference this year. The conference will provide opportunity for program staff to discuss issues impacting the Commodity Supplemental Food Program (CSFP), receive training on many areas of program operations, and network with other program staff from across the country.

This year's conference will be held in Memphis, Tennessee at the Memphis Downtown Sheraton Hotel from October 1-4, 2023. We encourage your agency's attendance as the conference provides an excellent learning opportunity for CSFP program administrators and operators.

Attendees this year conference will have opportunities to not only strengthen working relationships with USDA Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) representatives and other CSFP stakeholders but will also hear from USDA about policy and operational issues affecting the program.

Conference breakout sessions will cover CSFP-related topics including senior nutrition, legislative updates, food inventory management, program marketing and outreach, program partnerships, best practices, and food security issues.

The payment of reasonable and necessary expenses related to NCSFPA Conference attendance is an allowable use of CSFP Federal administrative funds.

Please consider attending or sending staff to this important event.

Sincerely,

Christina Peretti
Board President
National CSFP Association
